Createspace, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Each year members of the Environmental Studies Association of Canada (ESAC) convene at the organization s Annual Conference to network, share their research, and debate ideas regarding sustainability and the future of the planet. In part this book is the outgrowth of such research and subsequent discussions following the Annual Conferences held in 2012, 2013 and 2014, held at the University of Waterloo, University of Victoria and Brock University, respectively. Participants at those conferences and the broader ESAC community were invited to submit work for inclusion in a book on the theme of sustainability. All manuscripts went through a blind review process. The result is a medley - a sustainability soup if you will - of proscriptive, critical and insightful analyses into the current and future prospects for a sustainable planet. The chapters herein cross a number of themes tacitly confronting a distinct dimension of climate change. While the scientific community has increasingly built a consensus on the role of human activity in contributing to climatic change, the question of how we respond - as individuals, as communities, as nations, and as a species - is evermore on the minds of social scientists and in particular scholars of environmental studies. In the first chapter, Lenore Newman considers the potential disruption of the production of three iconic Canadian foods; ice wine, maple syrup, and salmon. Newman considers how climate change might compromise Canada s social and cultural food security. The impact of climate change on Canadian cuisine is considered within the context of concepts of the outdoors, winter, and wilderness. In the second chapter, Carolyn Peach Brown, Maggie Ibrahim and Nicole Ward outline how to build adaptive capacity through...
