At this went out faster than got in, but plucking up my courage, took up a great fire-brand, and rushed in again with it flaming in my hand, when I was moll: as much frightened as before j for I heardja loud sigh followed by a broken nolle, and thPp sigh again. I stepped back struck with such fMik that it put me into a cold sweat. Ho we ver recovered resolution enough to step forward again, and lifting up my light, 1 saw lying on the ground a monstrous he-goat, gasping for life. I now recovered from my fright, and began to look round me This cave was but twelve feet over, and I observed that on the farther side was an opening, into which 1 crept upon my hands and knees: but as I had no light I deferred going farther than the entrance till the next day, when brought candles of my own making, and crept about ten yards, after which the roof rose to about twenty feet high and the wall reflected a hundred thousand lights from my two candles. It was a deli htful grotto, the floor dry and level, no damp to be felt, nor any noxious creature to be seen. To this place I brot all my powder and all my spare arms, and now kept at my castle only five guns, which stood ready 4jUecL had now been twenty-two years...
