Excerpt: . all the space available is essential, since waste space and poor arrangement meant the waste of much human energy, as well as an economic loss. The number of rooms to be provided will depend upon the size of the workman s salary, and the size of the family to be housed. (See page 54). The three-room unit is the smallest which should be considered for a family. Four, five, six, or seven rooms may be needed-the fourroom or five-room is in greatest demand. A living room of some sort is essential. It should be so planned that it is used by the family, net as a parlor to be used only a few times each year, or as a bedroom. With the living room may be combined the dining room, or in very small houses living room, dining room, and kitchen may...
